MESSAGE

My warmest greetings to the National Council on Disability Affairs, as you spearhead the 34th National Disability Prevention and Rehabilitation (NDPR) Week celebration, as chaired by the Department of Labor and Employment.

In our continuing quest for equitable progress, the Filipino people are our most indispensable resource, and their welfare is our top priority. We take pride in the accomplishments of our differently-abled citizens and their contributions to our nation-building agenda. They are our paragons of strength and determination, resilient and steadfast in fulfilling their great potential among the movers of our nation.

May this occasion bring forth a stronger resolve in addressing the issues concerning your sector. Rest assured that we in government remain committed to safeguarding and promoting the interests of all our people, chief among these being the right to work in any office or industry setting and reducing the index of marginalization. Let us work together to secure a just society, where no one is left behind and every hardworking citizen is given the opportunity to realize his dreams.
